Chosen as Assistant Vice President for Finance and Administration in April 2008, Tom Vogler brings to the Office of Information Technology his nearly 30 years of auditing, accounting, and financial management experience, as well as the proven ability to apply new technologies to leverage business process changes and efficiencies.

In his current position, Tom is responsible for the management and coordination of all aspects of OIT financial, budget, and administrative matters, including the Terrapin Technology Store, the university's reseller operation for computer hardware and software. He is also responsible for risk assessment, business continuity, and disaster recovery management.

Tom has a long history of managing university finances. Before joining OIT, he served as the Assistant Vice President for Financial Services at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County and as the Director of Budget and Fiscal Analysis here at the University of Maryland, College Park, successfully managing budgets exceeding $1 billion. Additionally, Tom has directed accounting, payroll, purchasing, accounts payable, and grant units as part of his financial leadership roles. Early in his career, Tom gained experience auditing various state agencies as well as six Maryland universities and colleges.

Tom earned his bachelor's degree in Business Administration from the University of Baltimore, achieving the honor of Magna Cum Laude. He has also earned a master's degree in Public Sector Financial Management from the University of Maryland, College Park. Tom is a member of both the National and Eastern Associations of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO and EACUBO) and is a licensed Certified Public Accountant.
